HONORABLE SENATE,

JANUARY SESSION, 1895.

and Frank W. Rollins, having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared elected president.

And the chair requested Senators Stevens and Bartlett to conduct the President to the chair.

The President having assumed the chair, addressed the Senate as follows :

Senators:

Permit me first to thank you most sincerely for this election, which is particularly gratifying to a man of my years and lack of legislative experience. I shall do my utmost to demonstrate that your confidence has not been misplaced.

The presiding officer of a legislative body is but the servant or mouthpiece of the assembly, subject at all times to the direction of the assembly. This fact I wish you to bear in mind, and I ask and invite the help, advice, suggestion, and even criticism of my fellow Senators.

If I err I shall be only too glad to be set right by those among you who are old in years and rich in experience, and by thus working together I trust that we may be able to point with pride to our record as Senators, and return to our homes at the end of the session with a feeling of a duty well done, and I trust that in the deliberations upon which we are about to enter we may put aside partisanship and bring to the discharge of our duties high patriotism and a deep regard for the well being of the old Granite State.

Senators, I await your pleasure.

On motion of Senator Bartlett, the following resolution was adopted :

Resolved, That Edward H. Wason, as clerk, be elected by acclamation; that Henry E. Hill, as assistant clerk, be elected by acclamation; that James M. Adams, as sergeant-at-arms, be elected by acclamation ; that Henry B. Stearns, as messenger, be elected by acclamation ; and that Horace B. Sherburne, as doorkeeper, be elected by acclamation ; and Edward H. Wason, Henry E. Hill, James M. Adams, Henry B. Stearns, and Horace B. Sherburne are hereby elected to the several positions named respectively.

Thereupon, Edward H. Wason, Henry E. Hill, James M. Adams, Henry B. Stearns, and Horace B. Sherburne appeared, signified their acceptance, and were duly sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties before the President.

A true record.

His courtesy in his official as well as his private relations with us has endeared him to all, and we shall ever cherish the remembrance of our associations as Senators with pleasure unalloyed, without aught of bitterness or regret.

May his star of destiny ever shine undimmed, and his future be bright, happy, and prosperous.

The President responded as follows :

Fellow-Senators:

To say that I feel deeply grateful for this mark of your esteem would be but to feebly express my present feelings. It is but another expression of your favor and courtesy towards me which has been shown throughout the session of the Senate upon numberless occasions. I came among you, one of the youngest members, practically inexperienced in parliamentary proceedings; but from the very first I have received not only from those of my own party, but from the Senators of the opposition, the most kindly treatment, the broadest sympathy, and the most earnest assistance. Honorable Senators far superior to myself in experience, ability, and in all that goes to make a successful public servant, have extended to me the right hand of fellowship, and I have never called upon them for assistance in vain. Even those men from whom I expected, both from a party point of view, and for other reasons, opposition, have contributed in a large measure towards whatever success I have attained in the chair, and for all these many marks of your favor and courtesy I wish to thank you from the bottom of my heart. From the beginning of the session to this, its close, there has not, to my knowledge, been one item of bitterness and unkindness among the members of the Senate. The session will stand out preëminently as one fraught with good feeling and with an endeavor upon the part of all senators to make the wheels of legislation glide smoothly. I know we shall all look back upon it in future years as one of the bright spots in our political experience.

To be associated with such a body of men, the choice of their respective districts, has been a high privilege; to part with you is a sincere regret.
